STANDING UP FOR THE GFA

Following the appointment of Boris Johnson as the new British prime minister, Foyle MP Elisha McCallion said a change in British government policy is what is required, not just a change in personality in Downing Street.

CASEMENT REDEVELOPMENT

West Belfast MP Paul Maskey continued to work to secure the redevelopment of Casement Park in West Belfast, meeting with GAA, the Department for Infrastructure and the Department for Communities to discuss progress.

FIGHTING FOR JOBS

Fermanagh and South Tyrone MP Michelle Gildernew met with representatives from BT in Westminster to discuss concerns over the future of the company's operations in Enniskillen following reports it intends to shut down offices.

POLICY SHIFT ON LEGACY NEEDED

The new British government secretary of state for the north cannot continue to obstruct and frustrate efforts by relatives of victims of British state violence and collusion, Mid Ulster MP Francie Molloy has said and challenged Julian Smith to meet with victims groups and campaigners.

RIGHTS OF PALESTINIANS

Mickey Brady MP spoke at the international Palestine Expo in London, calling on the international community to stand by the people of Palestine. He also met with the grandson on Nelson Mandela, who is also an ANC MP.

WORKING TO SECURE GENUINE POWER SHARING

As talks continue to secure genuine power sharing institutions at Stormont, Chris Hazzard MP met with the new British government secretary of state for the north, Julian Smith, alongside Leas Uachtarán Michelle O'Neill to remind him of his responsibilities under the Good Friday Agreement.

TAKING ACTION ON OFFENSIVE FLAGS

As controversial flags have been erected across the north in support of 'Soldier F' who is facing murder charges in connection with Bloody Sunday, West Tyrone MP Órfhlaith Begley described the flags as offensive and provocative and called for their removal.
